☒ Previous natural ground disturbance has modified the surface so extensively that the likelihood of finding cultural properties is negligible,

☒ Human activity within the last 50 years has created a new land surface to such an extent as to eradicate traces of cultural properties,

☐ Existing Class II or equivalent inventory or environmental data are sufficient to indicate that there is no likelihood of finding a National Register listed or eligible property,

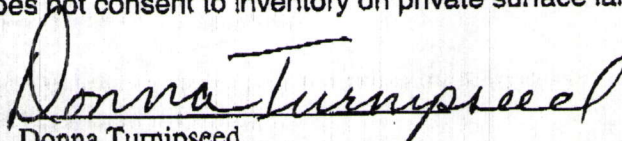

☐ Inventory at the Class III level of intensity has previously been performed, and records adequately documenting the location, methods, and results of the inventory are available.

☐ Previous inventories must have been conducted according to current professionally acceptable standards.

☒ Natural environmental characteristics are unfavorable to the presence of cultural properties (such as recent landslides or rock falls).

☒ The nature of the proposed action is such that no impact can be expected on significant cultural resources.

☐ Private landowner does not consent to inventory on private surface land.
